

D024.su NEW HAVEN, 10 NOVEMBER 1999

SOUND Fine

IMAGE Beautifully rendered two-camera mix, featuring centre-balcony head-on band footage (first screenshot below) tastefully intercut with closer shots from a more acquisitive, ideally-placed left-sided lens. Both cameras very capably handled with pictures consistently well-framed and steady. A few brief left-side obstruction interludes cause no harm. Likewise intermittent loss of a/v sync during Not Fade Away. Though less than pristine, film is still pleasantly tinted and very watchable.

RUNNING TIME Disc One: 57:15 + 6:15 bonus. Disc Two: 39:10 + 5:15 bonus. All songs complete.

PERFORMANCE Though Bob stumbles over his lyrics at least half a dozen times (this is, after all, the 111th show of this, his longest-ever performing year) there's so much here to enjoy that it's easier to note the also-rans than stand-outs: thus John Brown and TUIB both struggle to impress and LA Fadeaway is a song out of its depth.

Otherwise, though, a succession of convincing and sometimes dazzling performances by Bob and his most versatile NET band make D024.su a sure-fire keeper.

HIGHLIGHTS Gorgeous versions of Pages and Mornings with several more besides.

COMMENT (1) In 1997, Bob described on-stage as "the only place where I'm happy" and tonight, as he positively revels in what he's doing, his words are validated before our eyes. And pay attention right at the end of Pill-Box Hat so as not to miss a brief but wonderfully endearing moment that'll have you laughing as hard as the gob-smacked Tony.

HW "Easter Egg" bonuses: Springsteen on Disc One, Guthrie on Two ...

(2) Though neither bonus track is referenced on its disc's menu page, both can be individually accessed by highlighting then selecting the block of text under the Dylan set-list (see menu screenshot above). Two moderately rewarding pro-shot performances lie in wait, with jut-jawed Bruce's abridged Chimes edging out Arlo's full-length and equally sincere but rather overblown Eden.

SPECIAL THANKS Hazel

STARS Highly recommended. Five.